

CLAUDE DOANE'S CASE COMING UP IN MCKINLEY COUNTY

Man Charged With Ramah Murder Nearing Trial.

REPORTED THAT HE WILL PLEAD GUILTY TO CHARGE

Jurors were drawn in the court house yesterday morning in the presence of Judge Abbott, for the coming term of the United States and territorial court in McKinley county, which will convene in Gallup next week. The jury venues have been placed in the hands of the officers for service.

The only case of general interest to come before the McKinley county court is that of Claude Doane, the desperado who is charged with the murder of Walter Lyon, a school teacher, near Ramah, N. M., on the western boundary, the latter part of last June. The territory has a very strong case against Doane and it is stated that he will plead guilty and ask for the life sentence, although this is not confirmed in any authoritative quarter.

The crime was a peculiarly brutal one. Lyons who had been employed in eastern Arizona as a school teacher, started east overland with his wife's savings in his pockets for Albuquerque.

He was going for a summer vacation and found two companions, a white man and a driver, alleged to have been a Mexican. Doane has been all but positively identified as Lyons' companion, with whom he was last seen by the people of Ramah. The driver is alleged to have been one of two men who drove into Albuquerque with Doane a week later. A few days after his departure from Ramah the body of Lyons was found in the open country, the marks of a wagon near by. The pockets had been rifled and nothing of value had been left on the body. Doane, who had been out of the penitentiary but a few months, was traced to Albuquerque by the McKinley county officers. For three weeks the man played hide and seek with the officers in this county, hiding in the various river villages north and south, and driving off cattle and horses with a daring that took the officers' breath.

At last the situation got too warm for him and with Jose Baca, one of the hardest cross country riders on record, the men who took Doane were Deputy United States Marshal Fred Fornoff and Ben Williams, of the Santa Fe secret service.

It was on this trip through to northern New Mexico that Governor Otero became alarmed for the safety of his son, Miguel, and gave out a statement to the effect that he had discovered a plot laid by Doane to kidnap his child.

If the identification of Doane by the Ramah people is as definite as has been stated, the case against him is almost certain. It was stated sometime ago that he would try to shift the crime to the Ramah people, but it is hardly believed that this course will be attempted by the defense.

Judge Abbott continues the hearing of civil cases in chambers. The day yesterday was taken up for the most part with the argument of a motion for a new trial in the case of Chaves vs. Torline in which judgment has been recovered by the plaintiff.

NERVY FORGER JAILED IN DEFAULT OF BOND

HENDERSON ALIAS ROWAN TAKEN TO TOMBESTONE UNDER HEAVY GUARD.

Handcuffed to Constable Jack White with Mariah Snodgrass seated in front of him, G. L. Henderson, alias I. O. Marks, alias Emil Rowan, was a passenger for Tombstone last evening to go to jail in default of $5,000 bond for his appearance before the grand jury to answer to two charges of bank draft forgery under which he was found guilty in the court of Justice McDonald in this city yesterday, says the Bisbee Review. One of the charges was due to the attempt made by Henderson to pass a bogus draft at the Merchants and Merchants bank, and the other to cashing a forged draft at the First National of Douglas.

Justice McDonald yesterday closed the papers in the case of Rowan and got them off to Tombstone. This promptness will probably result in the forger being brought before the present grand jury.

Richard P. Hayes was before Justice McDonald yesterday, and with his consent postponement of hearing was again made until Wednesday at 1 o'clock. Occasion for postponement was the fact that Detective Riley, who arrived here Sunday and has since been the guest of his brother, E. G. Riley, will not until Wednesday have the requisition papers from the state of New York that he needs before he can take Hayes back.

Detective Riley stated yesterday that Hayes was wanted at this time in New York for the embezzlement of $1,800, and of $100,000, as the man claimed. However, Hayes is considered a dangerous criminal by the New York police. Embezzlement is his specialty.

Took Carbolic Acid.
Mrs. John Scott, of Upper Tombstone canyon, had a narrow escape from death on Sunday evening, shortly after 6 p. m., when she took a dose of medicine from the wrong bottle, and by mistake swallowed a teaspoonful of diluted carbolic acid, says the Bisbee Review.

Mrs. Scott was unconscious for several hours but further than this no ill effects were experienced.

The unconscious body of the woman was discovered lying partly across the bed by her little brother who came on an errand from her father's house who lives only a short distance away. He ran from the house down the street crying that his sister was dead and had killed herself. The news spread through the neighborhood that Mrs. Scott had committed suicide, but later this story was proven incorrect. The father of Mrs. Scott, Mr. Charles W. Blackburn, met his boy coming home with the news and hurried at once to the Scott residence. There he found his daughter lying on the bed, with the spoon still clutched in her right hand, her mouth set, and to all appearances life was extinct. The father dispatched a neighbor for a doctor and set to work to afford what temporary relief he could.

Election in Tucson.

The Bisbee Review makes this observation: "Tucson is getting ready for a city campaign, the city election in the Old Pueblo coming in December. The democrats in Tucson won a great victory last year when they pledged the abolition of gambling. The democrats have kept faith with the people and given the city a clean administration. With a good ticket now another complete democratic victory should be secured."

Rush for Artesian Belt.

The discovery of artesian water near Douglas, Arizona, has caused a rush of settlers into the Sulphur Springs valley of Cochise county, where a dozen homesteads are now being taken up every day. A stretch of country eight miles in length has been filed on during the last week. The soil of the valley is rich, but has never been tilled on account of lack of water. The artesian wells will place all of the lower valley within the tillable area, and it is predicted that the discovery will result in building up a large and rich agricultural section in that part of Cochise county.

John Lassoed the Bear.

John Bozarth, the well known cat-chin from the Camp Verde country, had a rather lively experience with a bear near Loco creek about ten days ago. While on a rodeo he sighted bruin, and gave chase, says the Prescott Journal-Miner.

After running him a considerable distance the bear showed fight, and cut a gash in the flank of his horse about four inches in length. He threw his rifle, which landed around the neck of the bear, and had him choked to death in short order. He states that a bear is just as easily choked with a rope as a steer, especially when the bear is fat.

It weighed 800 pounds and was of the silver tip variety. Loco creek is situated about midway between Camp Wood and the Santa Maria river. This is the largest bear seen in that locality for a number of years. Mr. Bozarth was unarmed, and had to depend on his rope and his horse entirely in the struggle.

SUN MAY RECLAIM THE ARID LANDS

EXPERIMENTS WITH SOLAR MOTORS NEAR NEEDLES WATCHED WITH INTEREST.

Needles, Cal., Nov. 8.—The Sun Motor Power Co. will replace their machinery with heavier material as the present material is not strong enough to stand the pressure of the work. The principle involved is very simple and is an old German idea. There are a number of glass covered frames resembling hot beds for forcing plants. The interior of these frames is filled with pipes which contains a chemical fluid called thermal. The heat drawn from the sun through the glass converts this fluid into gas, which operates a gas engine. The gas is then run through a condenser which is a coil of pipe that is covered with flowing water at as low a temperature as is possible to obtain. The fluid is then pumped back to the pipes and is used over time after time, except for the waste of leakage. One charging of thermal would be sufficient to keep the plant in running shape practically forever. The difference in temperature between the glass frames and the condenser gives the plant its power. On a hot day both the glass frames and the condenser will reach a higher temperature, so the difference is practically the same. The idea of using the sun's rays to convert this fluid into a gas is the new idea the promoters are trying to demonstrate as practical. Mr. Boyles, the principal promoter, is a well known mining engineer and has various mining interests throughout the country.

The work is in charge of Mr. Bat-tles, a refrigerating engineer from Los Angeles. As the plant has been run, it now remains to determine the cost of installing and operating the plant. This machine will furnish a long felt want throughout the desert country and the semi-arid district, where water is scarce and fuel is expensive. The experiment is being watched with interest. The company has purchased a twenty-year lease from J. Denair of his ranch just west of town.

do you know scores and hundreds of people would come down town at night, where they stay at home now.

WHY?

Because the streets would be attractive. Let the people come down and they will spend money. This fact has been demonstrated in a hundred cities. It can be demonstrated in our city. Let's talk it over.
